

Ariel Hourvitz, MD, MHA

Professor Ariel Hourvitz is the director of the Reproduction Laboratory, and senior physician in the IVF unit, Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology, Chaim Sheba Medical Center, Tel Hashomer, and Sackler School of Medicine, Tel-Aviv University, Israel.

He graduated the Sackler School of Medicine, Tel-Aviv University in 1985 and accomplished his specialization in obstetrics and gynecology in Tel-Hashomer hospital. He performed his research postdoctoral fellowship at the University of Utah, Health Sciences Center with Prof. Eli Adashi, and a visiting fellowship in infertility and in vitro fertilization with Prof. Zev Rosenwaks at The Center for Reproductive Medicine and Infertility (CRMI), Weill Medical College of the Cornell University, New-York.

He obtained a Master in Obstetrics and Gynecology from the Sackler School of Medicine, and a Master in Health Administration Cum Laude, from the Faculty of Management, Tel Aviv University.

Professor Hourvitz research interests include basic research on ovarian physiology, folliculogenesis and characterization of the human ovulatory cascade. He has published over 100 peer-reviewed articles in international journals and books and has been invited to speak in national and international meetings.