

Dan is the Senior Director of Applications at Oxford Nanopore Technologies. His responsibilities include developing laboratory and bioinformatics methods to allow users of the technology to perform a wide range of analyses. The Applications group also works with external collaborators to develop and demonstrate new uses for the technology.