

Giovanni Coticchio - Short biographical sketch

Giovanni Coticchio is the Scientific Coordinator of Biogenesi, Monza, Italy. He was educated at the University of Palermo (Italy) where he received his BSc in Biology and PhD in Cell and Developmental Biology. At the University of Nottingham (UK), he achieved his MMedSci degree in Assisted Reproduction Technologies and developed his research and career in clinical embryology. Subsequently, he joined Tecnobios Procreazione (Bologna, Italy) where he worked as senior clinical embryologist and Scientific Supervisor. He has published sixty-four peer-reviewed papers, several book chapters and two books. He is Coordinator of the ESHRE Special Interest Group in Embryology and Associate Editor of Human Reproduction.