

Professor Homburg consults in the UK, as Head of Research at the Homerton Fertility Centre in London, at the Hewitt Fertility Centre in Liverpool and in Malta, as an advisor to the Ministry of Health. As a fertility specialist, Professor Homburg has published 250+ research articles and chapters and written or edited 7 books. He has been invited to lecture in all five continents at frequent intervals and has won prizes for his research at the British Fertility Society (twice), the ASRM, ESHRE and the Israel Fertility Society (3 times). He has served as an associate editor for Human Reproduction and Human Reproduction Update. Professor Homburg's main interests are the treatment of infertility in general, polycystic ovary syndrome, ovulation induction, ovarian stimulation and IVF.